
California NRCS Construction Specifications

Introduction:

California NRCS Conservation Construction Specifications refer to additional materials used and quality factors such as construction preparation, installation methods, special requirements and testing. Construction Specifications are supplements to the above Conservation Practice Standards, as needed. (e.g. Existing specifications are inadequate or don't exist).